METHODISTS' LEVIED ON DUTY SHOWN AN ELEPHANT

Dr. Tigert Expresses Himself Clutches of the Law. Freely on Negro Question.

CELEBRATION ENDS TODAY

The Series of Exercises Beginning on Sunday Close this Evening With an Old-Fashioned Love Feast.

Perhaps the most notable feature of the Wesley celebration up to this time has been the address delivered last night at Broad Street Church by the Rev. J. J. Tigert, D. D., book editor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and one of the most distinguished men in the denomination.

It was what might be termed an informal address, so theroughly free and easy it was, bright with wit and humor. At the same time it bristled with strong and convlicing argument, and when it touched upon the relation of the Methodist Church to the negro race it became particularly interesting, and at times distinctly live. Many local ministers enthusiastically pronounced it one of the finest and most effective addresses ever delivered in Richmond by anybody at any time.

The Service.

A great audience was present at the meeting, and the interest was sustained throughout. The Rev. R. H. Bennett, presiding elder of Richinghad District, presided. The singing was excellent. The address by Dr. Tigert was the second he has delivered during the bicentennial, and it is difficult to say which was enjayed most. So entirely different were they, mowever, that there is no ground for comparison. Last night his subject was "The Methodist Church of the Fatturg," and it was admirably treated. The speaker used no manuscript, and he said he did not do so for several reasons. One of these reasons was that he might express some heretical doctrines which he might not want to be standing in black and white against him. Dr. Tigert said that the Methodism of the past, and that it is a great improvement on that of the past. The dector again referred to the old-fashioned class meeting, and said that pastors could have classes if they would, and he dignified the class leader as the drill master of the Mathodist Church. He said some striking things about stewards, and that he would stake a class leader against a steward, but added that this referred to stewards in Kentucky.

THE NEGRO QUESTION.
The speaker spoke with great enthusianm and marked decision of the relation of the Methodist Church to the colored race. Said he could not understand how a Christian could love a Chinaman whom he had seen. Further, that it is the duty of the Methodist Church, the negrees of the Southland educationally and religious to the forcer of the referred in works of commendaeffective one. He declared that importunate prayer does not mean prayer in the prayer does not mean prayer in the locked room, for an hour or a day, importunate prayer flowed from a heart which felt the overmastering impulse and desire for a blessing from God. Illustrations of importunate prayer were found in the prayer of the publican; in the prayer of Abraham that God spare the condemned cities of the plains, in the prayer of Moses, whose whole life was a prayer, and in other more modern examples of great and good men who have left a rich heritage of labors and achievements for mankind.

A feature of the morning was the singing of the old hymns, When at the continuous of Mr. Betty's sermon the choir and congregation took up one of the inspiring times Dr. John Hampon passed through the front seats, shaking hands with those near and giving expression to Closes To-Day.

set in motion by the owners of the building where, during the past few months, the huge elephant has loiled about, to the great and gleeful satisfaction of tribes of inquisitive and venturesome small ones. Liz swung her ridiculous tail just the same as usual and curied her anout in derision of the law. Her sharp little eyes blinked not a bit more nor less often than usual because an officer had formally levied upon her, and her fat sides shook now and then with suppressed laughter.

What the two lions thought about it nobody knows, but they probably enjoyed the idea that they were under arrest. They didn't suffer long in suspense, however, for after d short while the attachment under which they rested was released and transferred to six lions and one bear, now performing at the May Carnival, and these last-named are still in durance vile.

SUED OUT ATTACHMENT.

The arrest of the animals grows out of the alleged failure of Mr. Frank C. Bostock to comply with the terms of his contract with the West-End Park Electric Company, an allegation which will be followed by some literesting developments to be set afoot by the animal trainer himself.

In the Circuit Court of Henrico County yesterday there was filed by the West-End Electric Park Company, owners of the Horse-Show building, where Bostock and his motley tribes have been lodged, an attachment claiming $2,000 damages for lyreach of contract. It was alleged that Mr. Bostock, in contracting for the use of the building from December 1st to May 21st, had agreed to exercise all necessary cire, to do no more injury to the building stane was absolutely necessary, for remove all additions he might make, and to restore the building to its original state by the expiration of the contract.

sary, to remove all additions he might make, and to restore the building to its original state by the expiration of the contract.

In the attachment it is alleged that Mr. Bostock falled to comply with these terms, and that he was about to remove his property from the State. Briefly told, it was charged by the plaintiff that the show company had torn out the private boxes around the building used in the Horse Show, and in their place put eages for animals, using the floor of the said tier of boxes as a floor for the capes; that it had erected a large areas on the southern portion of the building, and in doing so tore down a pumber of boxes and destroyed the integrity of the building in that respect; that he further painted the pictures of wild animals and scenes from his performances upon the interior yestibule, thereby injuring and defacing the same for its general use. The paper was signed by Mr. Legh R. Page, counsel for the plaintiff.

As a result of the bill of attachment, a tery was made yesterday afternoon upon certain of the animals. Big Liz and two itoms were selected. But in order that Mr. Bostock might, leave with his show the attachment was later released and ransferred to six Bostock liens and one tion of his term, and several weeks ago he entered into a contract in writing with a firm composed of responsible persons to restore the building according to his contract with the West End Electric Park Company. This fact was well known to the officers of said company. No longer than last Friday Mr. Bostock and myself had an interview with the attorney of the company, during which the written contract Mr. Bostock had made for the restoration of the building was produced and shown to the attorney, and it was then and there stated that the work of restoration would proceed immediately upon the removal of the animals. It is unnecessary to say that it could not have been begun sooner. But, notwithstanding this, with absolutely no warning to Mr. Bostock, without any intimation that the course he was pursuing was not satisfactory, the attachment was sued out for 2,000 damages, which the plaintiff alleges it is apprehensive it may suffer.

"This morning at 7 o'clock workmen were at work in the building, restoring it in accordance with Mr. Bostock's contract, and in a few days it will be ready for the next horse show.

"Mr. Bostock is very jealous of his good name and reputation, and I have been instructed to fight the case to a finish, and then to sue the West End Electric Park Company and the surety on its attachment bond for heavy damages."

CHANGE IN HOTEL PLANS

Local Option Election Has No Part In It.

PETERSBURG, VA., May 19.—Some slight changes have been made in the plans for the Randolph Hotel to be built in this city, and the contractors have been requested to change their bids accordingly. The bids will all be in by the latter part of the week, and will be opened Monday.

There is no truth in the report that the probability of a local option election in Petersburg is delaying the plans of those who are to build this hotel. While those connected with the project do not hesitate to say that if they had the slightest idea the city would go dry they would not build a hotel, still they are not allowing this to affect their plans in any way. They do not have the slightest idea that Petersburg will vote to close bar-rooms.

DIVERSION SCHEME.

The engineers in charge are getting along fairly well with their work of fixing the lines showing the land that will be necessary for the success of the Appomattox diversion plan. As soon as these engineers have completed their work the County Court will be petitioned to appoint commissioners to condemn the necessary and. As soon as this is done and the amount of costs ascertained it would seem that the work will than have no further hindrances.

The evangelistic services being held at West Hill warehouse by Rev. George R. Stuart continue to grow in interest. The space was crowded last night, probably 2.00 people hearing the distinguished evangelist. At the morning service this morning there was something like a thousand people present, twenty of whom asked for prayers. The Methodist ministers are notively at work assisting the evangelist in his services.
